And to One Private Bill.

His Excellency was then pleased to make the following Speech:

My Lords, and Gentlemen,

THE Dispatch you have given to the National Business enables me to close the Session, and to relieve you from further Attendance in Parliament.

Gentlemen of the House of Commons,

His Majesty commands me to thank you for the Supplies you have voted for the Public Service; you may depend upon their faithful Application to the Purposes for which they were granted.

My Lords, and Gentlemen,

I have His Majesty's Commands to express His Approbation of the Wisdom that has guided your Proceedings during the present Session, especially in the liberal Indulgences you have afforded to your Roman Catholick Brethren, by establishing the Legality of Intermarriage, by admitting them to the Profession of the Law, and the Benefit of Education, and by removing all Restrictions upon their Industry in Trade and Manufacture.

Your Knowledge of the true Interests of your Country is plainly marked in the Measure you have adopted for carrying into Effect a reciprocal Preference in the Corn Trade with Great Britain, a System beneficial to both Countries, and peculiarly advantageous to the Agriculture of Ireland, that Source of your Wealth and Prosperity. The further Steps you have taken to check the immoderate Use of Spirituous Liquors, and your wise Regulations for the Charitable Institutions, prove your Attention to the Interests of the lower Orders of the People.

I shall firmly rely on your cordial Co-operation for the Support of Public Order and the enforcing Obedience to the Laws, by which alone the Fruits of National Industry can be secured; and when you reflect upon the flourishing Resources, the increasing Wealth, and unexampled Prosperity of the Country, you will not fail to impress upon the Minds of the People, that the Maintenance of our free and happy Constitution will ensure the Continuance of those invaluable Blessings.

After which the Lord Chancellor, by his Excellency's Command, said,

My Lords, and Gentlemen,

It is his Excellency the Lord Lieutenant's Pleasure, that this Parliament be prorogued to Monday the 18th Day of June next, to be then here holden: And this Parliament is accordingly prorogued to Monday the 18th Day of June next.
